Election Reform Slow Because Cure Could Be Worse Than the Ailment

(Comments by Congress-man Melvin Price of this district, Illinois 24th, to the House of Representatives during its consideration of H.R. 11060, the Federal Election Reform Act of 1971.)

No literate American, in or out of elective office, could possibly have escaped the present demand for reform in the way we pay for American politics. But it seems that some of those not in office ascribe to those most office ascribe to those to those one of the office of the open of the original politics.

In sizing up the problem, I must first take exception to the incessantly repeated proposition that campaign costs in this country are astronomically high.

Surely some campaigns are too expensive, often so much so that they manage to defeat the leading spender.

In one of these, the so-called modified Senate bill, we will be considering limits on some campaign expenditures. But, I ask, is a partial limit—ask, is a partial limit—office and the angle and the solution and excludes cost office and excludes siternative channels into which campaign money may pour—really postice could be policed, but isn't it also true that unless you can police the others, we have a half a loaf? Will half-way measures really reduce our costs of the solution of the specific way for the specific

And, who knows? We may be stalkling the ghost of TV spots which, by the time we can redo this effort, may have faded in the fort, may have faded in the computerized direct mailings to prejudice-profiled mailing lists which the modified Senate version of limits ignores?

And how will this type of expenditure ceiling hold accountable commence candilland the commence of the commence

I make these observations not in opposition to spending ceilings. I firmly support the proposition of realistic and enforceable limitations.

But I must point out that limitations in name only will not solve the problem.

But I must point out that limitations in name only will not solve the problem.

Another proposition we will consider will be so-called "full disclosure." As worthy as this concept is in general, it also contains some hazardous areas.

Most Important of the full contributors.

Most Important of the contributors will even the most legitimate contributors? Will even the most legitimate contributors.

An important failing of disclosure as a discipline is one successful to the contributors.

But the propose of this whole the court will be discussing, it is by far the most reasonable.

What I am suggesting is that along with full disclosure we need more emphasis on devel be discussing, it is by far the most reasonable.

Congressman Price Leading Study of Ways To Effectively Regulate Campaign Funds

Errectively Regulate Campaign Funds
Remarks by Congressman Price elsewhere on this page today are worthy of study. The House ethics committee chairman's thoughful discussion of the election campaign financing problem throws helpful light on it and whets interest in his plan to introduce "Operation Clean Bill."

terest in his plan to introduce 'Operation Clean Bill.' As he says, limiting media spending would be an enforceable but "half-way measure" which could "revive ward-healing practices of decards age profits underground.' Disclosure of campaign receipts is handi-capped by the difficulty of verifying exchanges of cash. While he favors a full disclosure re-quirement, the local congressman also hopes to foster a broader base of political contributions to "wholesomely generate the needed money for the process most elementary to our entire system." In encouraging public support of the political process, he would include a voice for each contributor in where his funds are sent.

The ethics question is one that will not go away until legislators have enacted more laws than those which presently exist. Perhaps, with the Price committee's guidance, sound action can be taken in the near future.

Development of Defensive Weapons Starting To Lag Badly Behind the Research by Russia

Lag Badly Behind the Research by Russi
The English publishing house of Jane's always seems to have more precise knowledge of the military and naval pure the source of information.

In recent years, its annual survey has dealt repeated blows to complacency over the ability of the western alliance to defend itself against growing Soviet armed strength, Publication of Jane's Weapons Systems, 1971-72, rounds out a picture that was gloomy enough already.

The new book sizing up the offensive armadas and defensive forces of the world spells out what the U. S. Defense Department has been trying to get across to Congress for several years—that our research and development effort for future weapons systems is lagging dangerously behind comparable Russian programs.

Editors at Jane's have concluded that the one shat could determine the balance of power in the 1970s and 1980s. For example, a new Soviet supersonic bomber is in the production stage, while our equivalent, the U.S. B-1A, is still only a mock-up in a wind tunnel. Russian developments in radar and anti-ballistic missile technology also are cited as being equally advanced.

A disturbing footnote is that the Jane's vanced.

A disturbing footnote is that the Jane's editors believe the nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are contributing to their own lag in weapons development by scattering their resources on duplicated efforts.

It contains more bad news than good news this year, but the latest publication should be "must" reading in Congress, in other western nations and in NATO.

'Tree of Lights' a Way to Share at Christmas

For many, the time before Christmans is a happy season. Hearts are filled with fellowship, good cheer and joyful expectation. Esteem and affection for those near to us find expression in words and deeds of love and generosity. The season is, for most Quad-Cityans, the best of times; season is, for most Quad-Cityans, the best of times. The annual Salvation Army "Tree of Lights" activity is a reminder that people also need to look beyond their own situation to neighbors who may be living in the worst of times—the elderly, the lonely, the ill and those beset by unexpected financial problems. Tree of Lights food baskets and clothing can provide a lifeline to them, making Christmas a happier occasion. The salvation Army and other organizations bring the joy of the holiday season to those in need, each person by contributing to the Tree of Lights fund or kettles can also serve as a lifeline. In extending his Christmas concern to those outside his immediate circle of friends and loved ones, unselfishly sharing his good fortune with many more, he can help spread the traditional "tidings of great joy" once again across the land.

Election Fills Mayor Vacancy

NOVEMBER 29, 1946
Harry T. Hartman was elected mayor of Venice in a special election to fill the vacancy left by the death of Mayor Edward Hagnauer, who had served 14 months of the four-year term.

A formal request for a $300-per-year cost-of-living increase was presented by faculty members to the Community High Schoo board. The proposed raise would cost the district $16,000 a year.

The IPeople remember September 8th, 1971

One hot day last September we delivered to our customers 1,969,710 kilowatts of electric energy, a record peak load for our system. Much of this energy was used for air conditioning to keep people comfortable in homes, hospitals, offices, theatres, stores and factories.

The combined efforts of thousands of well-trained people, many million dollars of investment in power plants, and years of planning and building were required to meet this demand.

The huge machines capable of delivering nearly two million kilowatts last September 8th will not be used to that capacity again until the hottest day next summer.

Electricity cannot be slock-piled. So every hour a generator stands idle, it is wasting money that can never be recovered. But when that generator can be used efficiently, it holds down our costs and, eventually, our customers' bills. Electric heat is one example of efficient, off-peak use of electricity during the months air conditioners are shut off.

That's why many of our employees work at increasing the use of electric heat wherever it will benefit our customers.

And that's why we advertise to inform people about electric heat and other off-peak uses of electricity.

The IPeople will continue to do their best to provide the energy our customers need—and to see to it that it is used efficiently.

That makes good sense for both of us.

IT'S OUR BUSINESS TO SERVE YOU BETTER

So easy to operate, even kids can use it!

You don't have to cook for the kids. Let them do it themselves . Radarange microwave oven. It's electronic cooking . . . the easiest cooking known to man . . . and kids.

- · Cooks a hot dog in 20 seconds.
- Cooks a hamburger in 60 seconds.
- Bakes a potato in 4 minutes.
- · Cooks a 5-lb, roast in 35 minutes.

And the Radarange oven cooks cool. Only the food gets hot, the oven and kitchen stay cool. You cook on paper, glass or china. Cook and serve on paper plates, if you like. Nothing could be easier than that.
